

Reclaimed Foundry Oak Batch: High Point

Salvaged from a historic furniture warehouse in High Point, North Carolina, this hardy oak floor was underfoot for a century of manufacturing. Material within this batch varies in color from golden brown to charcoal grey and may include occasional paint, old machine oil stains, and a range of wear marks. A great choice for commercial applications, this floor's unique appearance adds an instant and authentic industrial character to any environment.

Source Location: High Point, NC

Dating back to the 1920's, this historic building was most recently occupied by the Haworth Seating Plant. Until its closure in 2021 the facility still had a working steam whistle and a boiler that heated the building with wood scraps. Following World War 2 it was estimated that 60% of all furniture that was made in America was manufactured within a 150 mile radius of High Point.
